Last week we had the priviledge of having Jaha Marie Dukureh —activist, author, and global changemaker, join our book club where she answered questions about her book, her fight and her country, The Gambia. This 34

year old woman has done more in her life than four of us combined. She was/is determined not to let others go through what she did. Her story and memoir (I Will Scream to the World) is raw, inspiring, and proof that one voice can move nations.If you have the chance to read the book, I encourage you. Shop it here and if you would like the recording of our discussion, let me know. And then we'll start working on the Gambia trip!

Our next book title will be shared in the next newsletter. And while we are talking about books, a friend of mine who writes Memoirs, would love to gather people's stories on how travel/Steppin' Out travel has impacted their lives. Think about it and I'll be in touch with more details, but if you think you have a story, let me know.
