

Happy Earth Day!

Today marks the 53rd anniversary of Earth Day, a day dedicated to raising awareness about the importance of protecting our planet and its resources. As the effects of climate change become more apparent, it is crucial that we take action to preserve our environment for future generations.

One of the most significant threats to our planet is the excessive use of plastic. Plastic is a convenient and versatile material, but its improper disposal and accumulation in landfills, oceans, and other ecosystems have created devastating consequences.

We know that travel effects our climate and so it behooves us to do what we can to counter any additional harm. We are starting a blog every other week on the topic and we'd love to hear your feedback. Especially for those in the field. In the first of the series, we delve into

Ecclesiastes (Kehilot) 7:13

" When the Holy One Blessed Be He created Adam, the first man, He took him and showed him all the trees in the Garden of Eden and He said to him, "See My Creations, how beautiful and exemplary they are. Everything I createdm I created for you. Make certain that you do not ruin and destroy My world, as if you the harms of plastic use and how it affects our planet's health. We explore the environmental impact of plastic pollution and provide practical solutions that individuals and communities can adopt to reduce their plastic consumption and promote a more sustainable lifestyle.

destroy it, there will be no one to mend it after you."

We hope that our blog post will inspire you to take action towards protecting our planet and promote a more sustainable future.
